

How to bet on the Amazing Chase (match racing)

Although the Amazing Chase creates a very unique viewing spectacle with its match racing concept in comparison to a standard eight dog race, betting on the outcome of the race is very much the same.

The overall result will comprise of all eight contenders being given a final finishing position based on time order of fastest through to slowest race finishing times. This means that all the standard tote betting options will remain open for betting right up until the start of the first match race with a full race result declared shortly after the final match race has been run and won.

TAB Tote betting options available on the Amazing Chase include the following:

- Win
- Place
- Quinella
- Trifecta
- First Four

Alongside TAB tote betting options there are also a number of fixed odds betting options available through the TAB Bookmakers.

These comprise of both futures betting (backing a greyhound in advance before the final field is declared) and also final field betting which becomes available once the box draw for the final is completed.

TAB Fixed odds betting options available on the Amazing Chase include the following:

- Final Field Win
- Final Field Top 3
- Head to Head (individual match race winners)
- Head to Head multi (combination of match race winners multied together)

There may also be a number of novelty fixed odds bets available on the day, these can include bet types such as island of winning dog, sex of winning dog etc.